Interim ordinance up before committee tonight

A proposed interim ordinance, requiring a special permit for any construction or subdivision of land during the next four months, will be discussed tonight by the Carmel Valley Master Plan study committee. The Jan. 20 meeting will be held at 7:30 p.m. in the crafts room of Carmel Valley Manor.

As with most committee matters, the public is encouraged to participate in tonight's debate over this "emergency ordinance," covering development during the period the Carmel Valley Master Plan is being revised.

The proposed ordinance, drawn up by the staff of the county planning department, is modeled on the Big Sur interim ordinance.

If adopted, this "emergency" ordinance would require special application and a public hearing for all new construction in the valley, even single family residences. At the same time, building may not commence under any circumstances on Class I or II agricultural land now fallow or in production, nor on the 100 year flood plain.

The ordinance would also discourage individual wells, although mutual water systems may be approved until connection to Cal-Am is possible. New roads and above ground utilities would also be discouraged.

Other areas covered by the proposed ordinance are: grading review to minimizing destruction of the existing vegetation, viewshed protection, site and design review of all structure, fences, signs and other improvements, landscape review and slope protection.

The reason for establishing such an ordinance, according to the ordinance itself, is that the present studies will lead to precise and detailed zoning regulations in the valley, but interim construction "would destroy the effect and purpose of the contemplated zoning regulations if not regulated immediately."

If passed, this emergency ordinance would remain in effect for four months, at which time a public hearing may be held to determine whether it can be extended for an additional eight months. Total permitted time allotted for such an interim ordinance, including extensions, is two years.

Subcommittees

Subcommittees for the Carmel Valley Master Plan Study Committee have been formed and resource people from the community are being sought to serve. The seven subcommittees have been created to accumulate background data on individual subjects of concern in the revision of the Valley master plan.

Subcommittees and their contact persons are:

Transportation (riding and hiking trails, aviation, circulation other non-vehicular transportation), Jack Van Zander at 373-2941 or 624-5742.

Hazards (seismic, flooding, landslides, fire and noise), Robert Greenwood at 624-9015.

Natural Resources (water, viewshed, minerals, soils, vegetation, wildlife, native plants, slope, air quality), Nancy Burnett at 659-4577.

Land Use (design control, open space, recreation, agriculture, slope density, current zoning and land use), Bill Cranston 659-4650.

Social-Economic (recreation, commercial and industrial facilities; housing stock; public facilities and services; history and archeology; community involvement and participation), Newcomb Diehl at 625-1760.

Growth Management (population, legal alternatives), Victorial Gibson at 624-0606.

Water and Waste Management (health, sanitation, solid waste, liquid waste, water supply), Mary Ann Matthews at 659-2528.

Road projects stymied by lack of money

By DAVID COLE

Don't look for new county road projects in the near future. The Monterey County Public Works Department is very low on funds and will be doing little more than road maintenance for the next few years.

In a talk before the Carmel Valley Master Plan Study Committee recently, supervising civil engineer for Monterey County, L.M. Orrett, explained that inflation had eaten into the county's highway funds so badly that maintenance is about all the road crews can perform. If things continue as they have been going, Orrett said (and he believes they will), soon the county will have trouble even making necessary road repairs.

The problem is that construction costs have risen at a rapid rate, while road revenues from the state's gasoline tax have remained fairly constant. Orrett sees little hope of an increase in that tax within the next five years.

Meanwhile, the county has embarked on new projects only when they receive federal matching funds. Even with financial help, few roads can be built in the county, however. Turning to Carmel Valley, Orrett pointed out that the Carmel Valley Ranch project would provide 40 per cent of the cost of widening the valley road to mid-valley, but he said he has no idea where the other 60 per cent would come from.

So for the near future, Orrett said, there are no scheduled projects in Carmel Valley at all. An overlay of the Valley road shoulders up to Schulte road was planned at one time, but now there is no money for such an undertaking.

The present cost of changing a mile of two-lane Valley road to four-lane, is a half million dollars, according to Orrett.

One solution to the road funds problem, he explained, would be a revision of the subdivision rule for minor and major subdivisions so that someone building a house would have to pay a certain amount toward providing adequate roadways for his cars. This is similar to the arrangement worked out for the Ranch project.

Orrett said that the original Valley master plan called for an additional road on the south side of the Carmel River. This would begin with development then expected on the Odello property and work its way up with further development. Such a road is no longer contemplated.

Also once contemplated was a highway all the way to Greenfield, but this idea too has been scrapped.

Orrett explained that the traffic between the village and Los Laureles Grade now amounts to 6,000 vehicles per day. At mid-valley that figure rises to 8,000 vehicles per day. What the study committee will have to consider, Orrett said, is what future development in the Valley will add to figures like this.

Alternatives to increased vehicle traffic, he said, include some kind of public transportation. At one time, a special road just for buses was considered for the Valley. The problem with buses though, he said, is that most Valley homes are built up on the sides of the hills. That means those wishing to make use of public transportation would have to walk down the hills to board it and walk back up when they returned. Also, MPT buses now account for only two per cent of the trips made on the Peninsula, taking a fairly small bite out of the traffic problem. The Valley could expect little better.

You can ignore the problem, Orrett said, and let traffic worsen on the Valley road, but the result will be a change in population.

School board retains counselor

In a unanimous vote the Carmel district school board approved continuation of the community counselor position, but during discussion got into a squabble over the board's intent on a motion five years ago.

Board member Elizabeth Bell questioned funding the position entirely out of the community services tax and suggested using money donated to the Monterey County Youth Authority to pay a portion of the salary. She also said the board had been dissatisfied in the past with accountability for funds donated to the Youth Authority.

Frances Gaver serves as the board's representative to the Youth Authority and said she doubted whether the money donated could be allocated in that fashion. She also denied that the school board had ever been dissatisfied and defended the Youth Authority's record. Mrs. Gaver pointed out that the board and the Youth Authority had never had any type of fee for services contract.

Mrs. Bell said she thought the board's intention five years ago, in passing a motion to fund the Youth Authority, was to have some noting of services rendered.

Richard Wilsdon, board president, told Mrs. Bell, "You don't know the board's intention... you weren't here and you didn't vote."

"I read it in the minutes...," answered Mrs. Bell.

And Wilsdon concluded, "The board has never gone on record as being dissatisfied. You (Mrs. Bell) may be dissatisfied."

In other action the board:

—acknowledged receipt of a proposed contract from the California School Employees Association covering classified employes in the district. A public hearing on the contract has been scheduled for Feb. 9, at 7:30 p.m. in the Middle School library. Until the hearing a copy of the proposed contract will be available at the district office.

—approved payment of $4,600 for the 1975-76 audit and accepted the report.

—authorized the administration to advertise for bids on school supplies.

—approved an application for library funds under Title IV B of the Elementary and Secondary Education Act. The $5,979 requested will be used at Captain Cooper School.

—heard a description of the proposed Middle School instruction program for 1977-78. Bob Hufford, Middle School principal, told the board that there would be shifts in the social science studies sequence, but no changes in required courses or electives.

—discussed for the second time the district's three year budget projection. Mrs. Bell said, "I really would like to see us keep the class sizes down... so that we can truly hold our teachers accountable for one year's progress." Mrs. Gaver and Pamela Smith said it would be too expensive to attempt lowering class sizes. Mrs. Bell's proposal to lower class sizes by three to four students could, Mrs. Smith said, cost the district over $100,000.

—retired to an executive session to discuss teacher's requests for sabbaticals and then reconvened the meeting to approve the requests.

Padres win two

By NANCY FLEMING

The Carmel High Padres opened their Mission Trail Athletic League basketball season with a 76-41 win over the Gonzales High Spartans last week in Carmel.

John Frincke led the Padres with 16 points and was tough on the offensive boards. Carmel dominated every aspect of the game, from field goal accuracy to height difference. The Padres repeatedly scored from inside the key, penetrating the Spartan defense with relative ease.

Another key factor in the game was turnovers. Carmel's playmaking guard Dan Sturges didn't lose the ball once while Gonzales racked up 26 turnovers by the end of the game.

Carmel's coach, Joe Feldeisen, obviously pleased with his team's showing said, "I think that our intensity tonight was a lot better than it had been recently."

Playing in perhaps their most difficult league game this year, the Padres posted a 57-44 win over Palma High in Salinas Friday night.

Coach Feldeisen summed up his team's victory by saying, "We had a good defense and we played with poise."

Down 22-19 at the half, the Chieftains came out ready to go. Palma scored with a basket by Rossi and then Lesko, fouled on the play, added two more points to put the Chieftains ahead 23-22. The lead changed hands six

'Pajama Game' opens Friday

The musical "Pajama Game" will open on Jan. 21, at the Wharf Theatre. Based on Richard Bissel's novel about a labor-management salary dispute in a garment factory (pajamas, what else?), "Pajama Game," was written by George Abbott and Richard Bissel and features music and lyrics by Richard Adler and Jerry Moss.

LaVonne Rae Andrews and Danny Gochnauer will play the romantic roles of Babe, head of the workers grievance committee, and Sid, the new plant manager. Jennie Hughes appears as Gladys, the role that brought Broadway fame to Carol Haney.

Major comedy roles have been given to Keith Decker, Michael Carlton King and Linda Cornish. Appearing in featured roles are Howard Hinckley, Burt LeVine, Mary Ann Lucido, Janice Marotta, Peter Thomas and James Clifton Honroth. Cast as garment workers are Ken and Judy Jorn, Pam Compton and Terry Fry. Also appearing are Scott Imler and Dan Ursino, who with Jennie Hughes dance in the show-stopping number "Steam Heat."

Some of the musical numbers from the show are "Hey There" "I'll never be Jealous," "Hernandos Hideaway," and "There once was a man."

Pajama Game is directed by Morgan Stock, musical direction by Pauline Thomas, with choreography by Akemi Ito.

The play will run for six weeks, with performances on Friday, Saturday and Sunday evenings.

"HURRY UP AND SLOW DOWN" chorus the workers at the Sleep Tite pajama factory, left to right Mary Ann Lucido, Terry Fry, Judy Jorn, Janice Marrota, Pam Compton and Akemi Ito, to the annoyance of efficiency expert Hines, played by Keith Decker in the musical production of the "Pajama Game" which opens at the Wharf Theatre in Monterey on Friday, Jan. 21.

THE JUBILEE SINGERS, led by Albert McNeil will appear in concert at Pacific Grove Jr. High School on Thursday, Jan. 20 at 8:15 p.m.

THESE ARTIFACTS from Ecuador are part of the current exhibit of the collection of Col. William R. Cameron on view at the Monterey Peninsula Museum of Art through Jan. 29.

Jubilee Singers to perform Jan. 20 in P.G.

The Monterey Peninsula Concert Association will present the Albert McNeil Jubilee Singers of Los Angeles on Thursday Jan. 20, at 8:15 p.m. at the Pacific Grove Junior High School auditorium.

A music educator in the Los Angeles public school system, McNeil joined the University of California at Davis in 1969 where he heads the department of music education, teaches a course in Afro-American music, directs the concert choir, and also directs a 30 member, all white, Sacramento Chorale who sing with the Sacramento Symphony.

The Jubilee Singers premiered the West Coast performance of Ballad for Americans and Lonesome Train, a recreation of Lincoln's funeral journey. There followed musicals "Finian's Rainbow," "Show Boat" and "Annie Get Your Gun," performances in Hollywood Bowl, coast to coast radio and television and movies. Afro-American composers Langston Hughes, William Grant Still and Hall Johnson have written works for them, and they have filmed a documentary, "O Freedom."

They have had four sold out European tours, a tour of the Far East and of Africa, representing the United States in many festivals. Samuel Goldwyn turned to the Jubilee Singers to record the sound track for the film version of Porgy, and their voices are heard in such films as Carmen Jones, Cabin in the Sky and others. CBS has recorded two albums of their music.

Attendance at the concert is limited to members of the association, and to members of similar associations on a space available basis.

Girl Scout cookies

"Great cookies for a great cause" is the theme of the 1977 Girl Scout Cookie sale now in progress to raise funds for the Carmel Valley Girl Scout Cadette Troop.

Mrs. Paula Washington, Parent Project Chairman lists a selection of five flavors at $1.25 per box; Thin Mints, a chocolate wafer; Samoas, caramel covered on top and bottom; Do-si-dos, peanut butter sandwiches; Vanchos, vanilla and chocolate cremes; and Trefoils, the old fashioned shortbread.

Girls will be in your neighborhood soon taking orders or you may phone any of the following young sales ladies and they will be happy to deliver an order to your home: Susie Brandt, 659-2150; Suzette Conne, 659-4472; Wendy Lambert, 659-4859; Kerry O'Hara, 659-4977; Elaine Washington, 659-4293; or for the convenience of Mid-Valley residents, you are invited to call Maria Marchi, 625-2349.

The annual cookie sale gives the Girl Scouts an opportunity to earn money for their troop activities; to help girls participate in special Girl Scout opportunities; to give direct services to girls, and to purchase equipment and property in their behalf.

SUZETTE CONNE, Elaine Washington and Susie Brandt — three winsome lasses who will be knocking soon at your door selling "Great cookies for a great cause" — the Carmel Valley Girl Scout Cadettes.

Padres 2-0 in league times until Bob Pollard scored to put the Padres ahead 30-28 with 3:52 left in the third period. Both teams scored again and the fourth period began with the Padres ahead 32-30.

Rossi tied the score for the Chieftains before the Padres broke loose for eight straight points. Palma seemed to lose its composure and committed six fouls in the last four minutes of the game. Carmel played tough defense and never let the Chieftains within eight points the rest of the way.

Feldeisen praised his whole team, saying, "Everyone did a good job, especially Dan (Sturges). Bob (Pollard) came off the bench and really ignited us in the third quarter." Feldeisen, formerly Palma High's coach, concluded, "It's great to come in here and win."

Carmel is now 12-2 overall and 2-0 in league action.

LIONS CLUB

President Paul Ricketson announces a Bingo Party for the local club on Thursday night Jan. 26 at the Carmel Valley Community Youth Center at Ford Road and Carmel Valley Roads, from 8 p.m. to approximately 10:30 p.m. The public is invited. All profits from the Bingo event will go toward youth organizations in the Carmel Valley area as well as toward the maintaining of the Monterey Peninsula Blind Center which the local club helps to support.

High on the list of the local club is the support of the local Community Youth Center. In the last year the local club furnished the new tables for the center as well as the new drapes for the main room. This amount exceeded $1,000.— More recently the local club donated $60 to the Carmel High Band for appearing at the Santa Fly In during the holiday season.

CVPOA

The Carmel Valley Property Owners Association will hold its quarterly meeting Wednesday, Jan. 26 at 8 p.m. in the Casa Fiesta room at Hacienda Carmel. Major topic of discussion will be the Peninsula's water shortage, including the proposal to establish a regional water disrtict and the Zone 11 special tax. Supervisor Sam Farr and county planning commissioner Bill Peters are scheduled to attend. CVPOA also plans a short business meeting and installation of officers.
